Two is cheddar than one

New York cheese institution Murray's opens a new location

NEW YORK'S MECCA FOR THE AGED and cultured is spreading its wings. Murray's, the Greenwich Village cheese institution, has unveiled a new shop and restaurant in Long Island City. The neighborhood is already home to Murray's cheese-aging caves, where affineurs produce a proprietary line including a sweet, grassy Swiss called Annelies; the award-winning Stockinghall cheddar; and the decadently moreish 80:10:10. "It is our twist on a classic Italian Taleggio, but made from cow, goat and sheep milk," explains head cavemaster Peter "PJ" Jenkelunas. "80:10:10 is savory, buttery, nutty and all-around delicious."

The new LIC boutique adopts a more European format with customers exploring open cases alongside trained mongers. Next door, the Cheese Bar entices with a menu of heart-meltingly good eats—think chèvre-layered BLT, chicken salad with feta, manchego-infused risotto, and crispy eggplant crowned with burrata. —GERRY TAN

YOU CAN PLANT YOURSELF AT THESE VEGAN HOTELS

You don't need to be on a plant-based diet to choose a sustainable travel option like a vegan hotel. For World Vegan Day (November 1), we highlight unique accommodations across the globe

Hilton London Bankside

Book the Hilton London Bankside's fully vegan suite, where the headboard, chairs and cushions are all made from Piñatex—a pineapple-based vegan leather—and a pillow menu swaps feather down for vegan-friendly materials. Bathroom toiletries and the minibar's healthy snacks are vegan-friendly, as well. hilton.com/en/hotels/lonsbhi

Anse Chastanet and Jade Mountain St. Lucia

Guests at these sister resorts can tour the organic farm that supplies their kitchens, followed by a vegan cooking demo in the hillside farmhouse. Or opt for a tasting at the Chocolate Laboratory, which produces 100-percent vegan and organic chocolate from the property's cocoa trees. ansechastanet.com

The Stanford Inn by the Sea Mendocino, California

The spa at this inn along the coast is situated in the woods, uses cruelty-free plant-based products and is known for its forest massages. End a couple's massage with vegan champagne and a plant-based sweet such as huckleberry cobbler or candy cap cookies made with foraged mushrooms. stanfordinn.com
